INITIAL IDEA

Abstract

Comparative analysis of Cultural Diversification in two different timelines

The tales of rulers, warfare, palaces, always reflected a sense of extravagance, fantasy, and rich life to a naive young girl of the digital era. Through my research of comparative analysis, I intent to understand the cultural diversification that have exists in these two timelines. How the meaning of cultural diversification has evolved? How people cope up with culturally different people? How the nations that win the war and occupy the new boundaries manage control and discipline in the new region?

Sources of literature review include:

Museums- data and artifacts

Tour guides- history, stories and lifestyle

Anecdotes- the folk stories

Books- recorded experiences of rulers (writings, biographies, autobiographies)

Movies- reflecting warfare, power, lifestyle, extravagance (Game of Thrones, Padmawati, Lagaan, Shatrang k Khilari, Uncle Tom's Cabin, the Hunchback, BahuBali)

Secondary Data Collection (museums, tour guides, anecdotes, books and movies) will be analyzed for this research. This analysis will be based on many factors including lifestyle, culture, power, extravagance, self-defense, friendship/allies etc and compared with the current time (21st century) to understand the meaning, essence and scope of cultural diversification and develop a comparison between the two.

Toxic Rishta Culture of Pakistan

PAKISTANI WOMEN / NOVEMBER 13, 2019

Rishtas: the most important thing in a Pakistanis (read: girl) life.

Something that becomes a concern before a baby is even born. The second daughters are born, they're blessed with prayers for their naseeb. Who knew naseeb is limited to "achey rishtey" and why is that a concern when a baby is about 30 seconds old?

ABSTRACT

My research has evolved contrary to different studies that I was probing into, it initially started from how cultural diversification has evolved and pertained over different timelines and this has made us who we are today?! However I nudged a little further into the topic and decided to narrow down the vastness of the topic by restricting my study to how our culture treats women differently in comparison to men. This gender bias has existed for as long as I can remember and being a women in this society adds a certain amount of pressure on the shoulders to behave in a certain way because we will be bound to be perceived differently on the basis of our gender solely. This inadvertently leads to women objectification and that's what I want to tackle with for my thesis project.

I intend to do this by making Visuals of different situations and how women are treated in our society and I also intend to incorporate shallow mindsets of people and how they expect women to run the household and take full charge of husband, house, and children along with a successful professional career. The demand for a doctor Bahu (Daughter in law) is much higher and is also met with high expectations from the girl, like managing her career along with all the household chores that puts strains on the girl much more than it does on the man. I also want to deal with different scenarios where women are objectified and judged if they are doing something that allows people to raise fingers at them, like choosing a career like modelling or acting puts women in a position where they are thought to be less of a human and someone who would not be able to run a household or make a good wife. I intend to challenge all these preconceived notions through my comics and critique the idea of such staunch narratives that are embedded so deeply in our society.

Masla yeh hai that aunties want girls that are ages of 22-25 okay so where do the girls that are 28 plus goo... Aunties need to understand u finish college what age 24 to 25 max lets say then do master that takes anothe 2 years she was 27, takes up a job. These freaking aunties need to understand that girl age is going up wid everthing they are accomplishing not down ... but son is 33plus but 22 age girl chaiye aunty lannat ho app ki shakal peh... kya educated log kya unpaar all have the

This is the right approach, we need men to also voice our cause to change the pathetic rishta culture.

2 w 1 like Reply

risktay his objectification is not just for women in our society. Men also face this process. Both men and women are going through this process and we need to stop it.

2 w 2 likes Reply

The biggest problem in solving this issue is our parents consent, because in most of the cases even if the bride n groom agrees on having a simple marriage, no dowry etc. The parents on both sides, still brand a lavishing wedding on socities pressure.
