My thesis project is revolving around the famous game of chess. Chess is a strategy based game but it also requires a lot of skill and hours of practice where the players can train their minds in such a way that understanding the tactics of their opponent becomes their second nature. If you subtract the element of chess from it these three things play a vital role in our daily life.

Keeping in mind the keywords, the understanding of chess from all sides became imperative. Though out my journey I have learnt that chess needs to be looked at from the opponent's perspective, driving me to look at different documentaries,
