Concept

From the Ashes a New Movement

8 years ago, I would often lash out at people because of the internal turmoil which was fueled by the relationship I had with my Father. My Father and my Mother had a substantial age difference between them that caused many arguments, often resulting in violent confrontations. As a direct result the tensions created – I was often forgotten.

My relationship with Father was strained. I would look for approval, for love. It caused me to act out to strangers. In order to protect myself from my own feelings I would purposefully push people away with my attitude.

My father's death stood as a highly breaking moment. I couldn't recall even a single moment where my relationship with father wasn't strained. I used to have this hot nature like fire, and having realized that the time we have here is transient. I molded myself, just how it's a property of water to change as per the object it's placed in. This is what drove me to make a 180 degree change in my behavior. I wanted to be remembered as truly a caring person.

Never had I thought of being such a solicitous individual. But I guess life is all about shifts, you never know what occurrences might take you to. It only takes one incident, or even a thought to change your complete perception regarding life. Thereby, as one cannot predict future even by a Nano-second – these uncertainties in life really have made my interest in the movement of water and fire, as one cannot predict the next shift they might make, making movement the foremost element of my topic.

Hephaestus (fire god) is the god of blacksmiths and fire. Known as “the celestial artificer,” he was also associated with other craftsmen (sculptors, carpenters, metalworkers) and, as evident in the name of his Roman counterpart Vulcan, with volcanoes. Even though an ugly god lamed by his own mother.

Prometheus (god of fire)

in Greek religion, one of the Titans, the supreme trickster, and a god of fire.

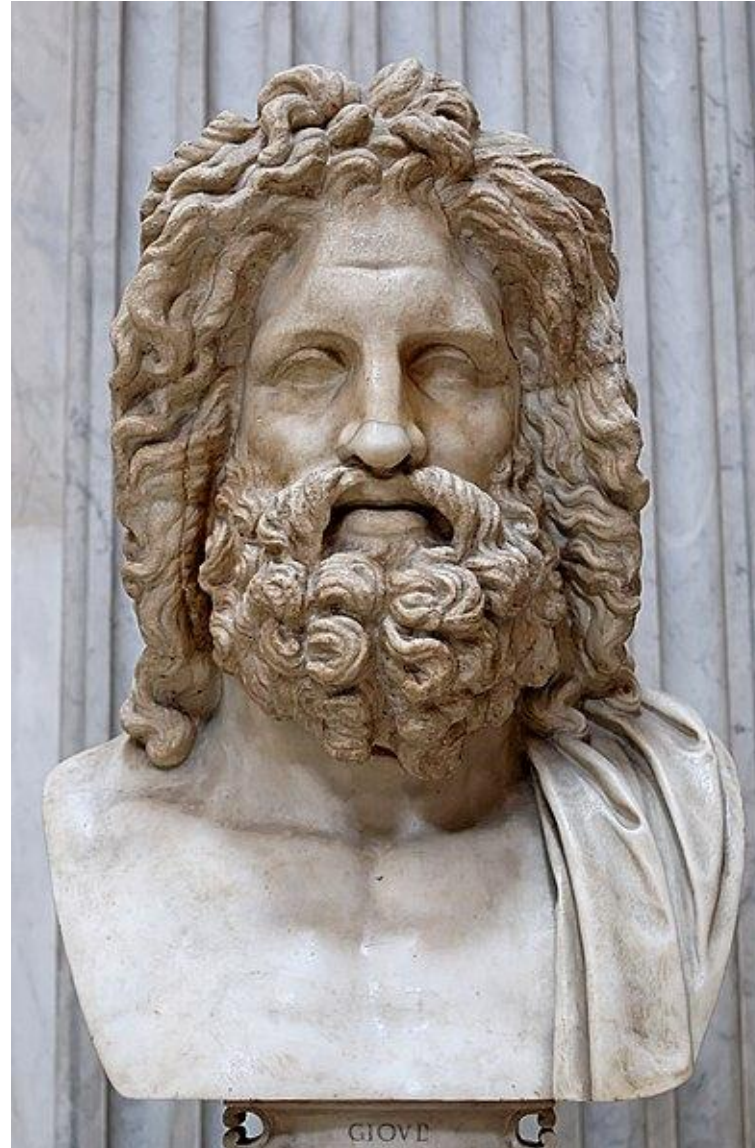

His intellectual side was emphasized by the apparent meaning of his name, forethinker. In common belief he developed into a master craftsman, and in this connection he was associated with fire and the creation of mortals.

These deities or gods had powers to control the elements of water and presided over all the fresh and salt water of the earth. They are associated with seas, sea-storms, waves, currents, sea-creatures, lakes, springs, rivers, fountains, marshes and ground waters.

Self Performed Photography of Water

- I did photography to understand the movement of water.

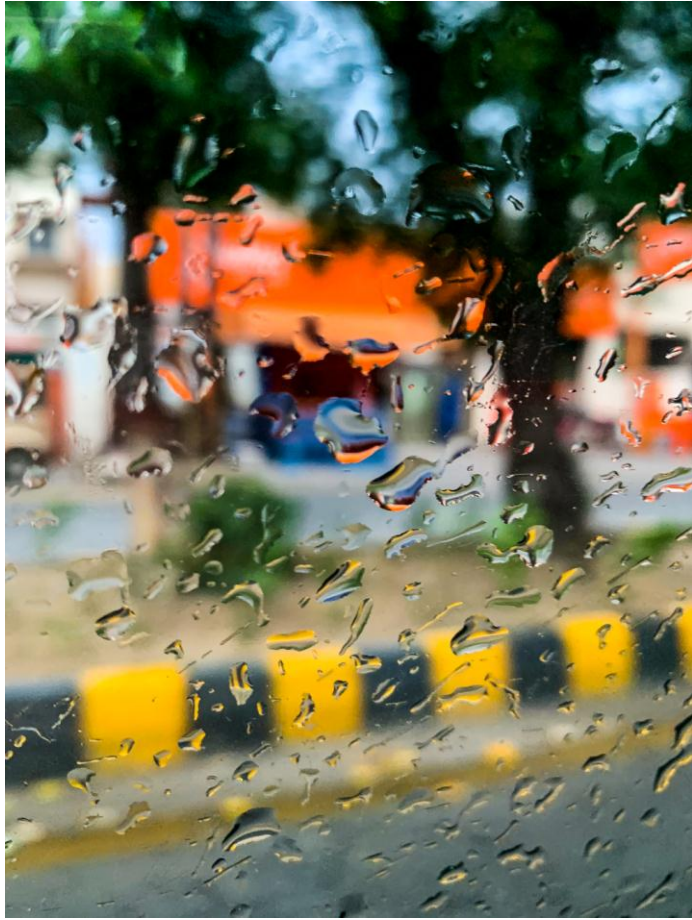

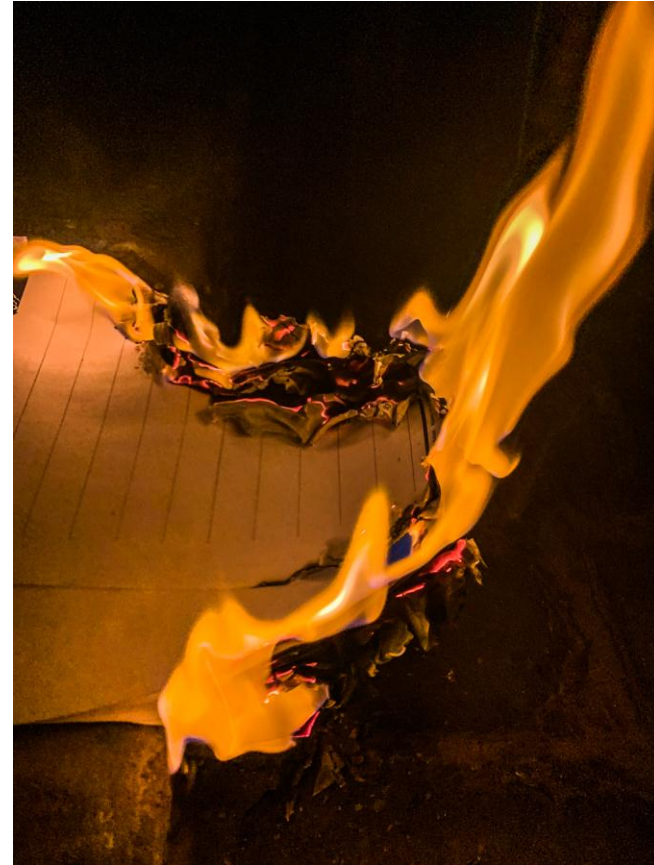

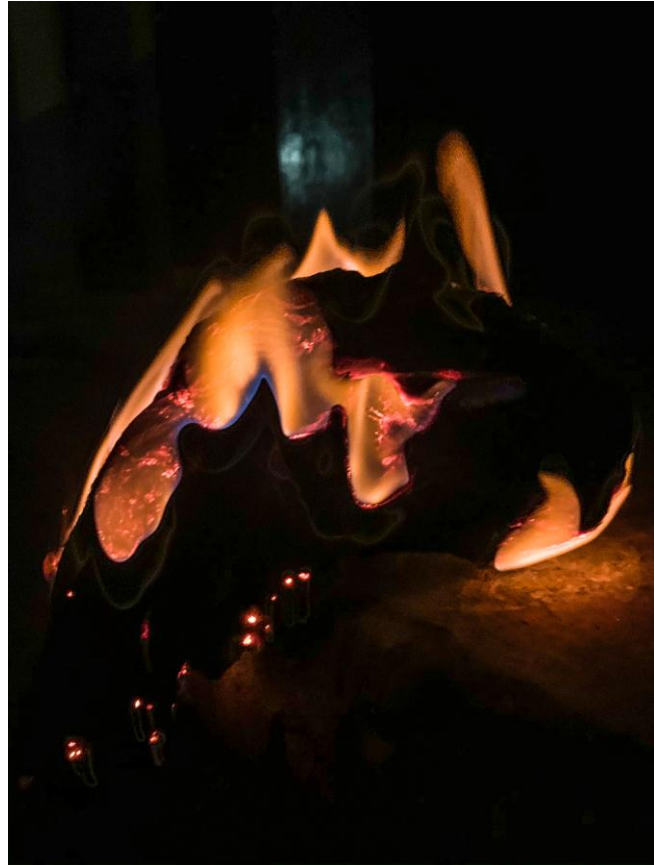

Self performed photography of fire

- I did photography to understand the movement of fire.

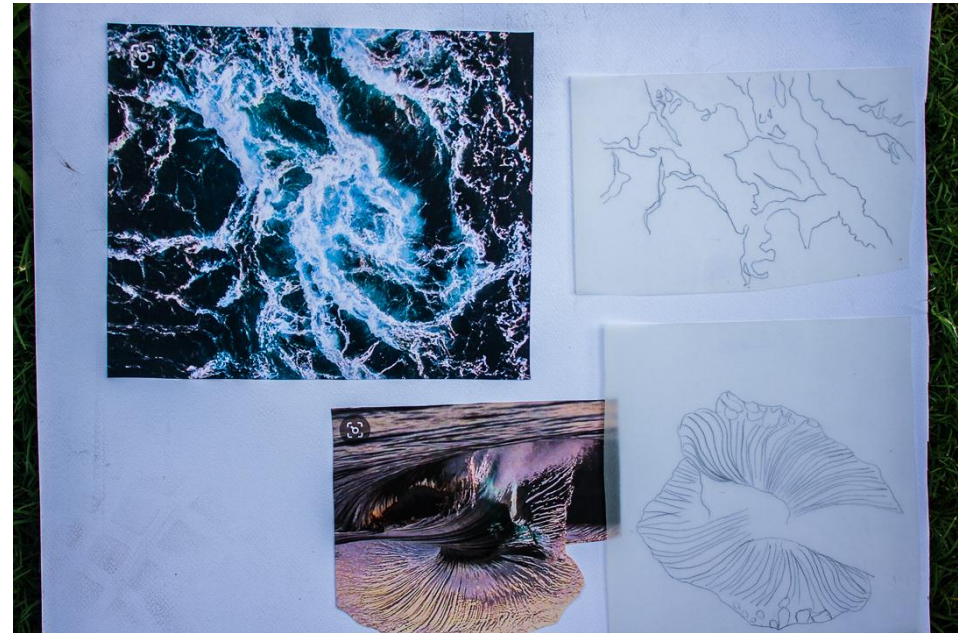

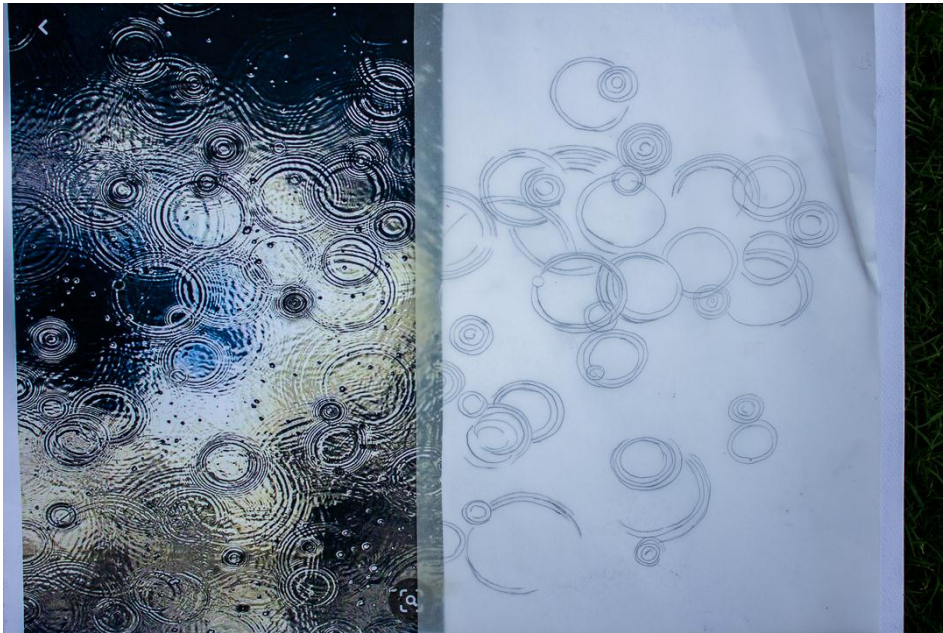

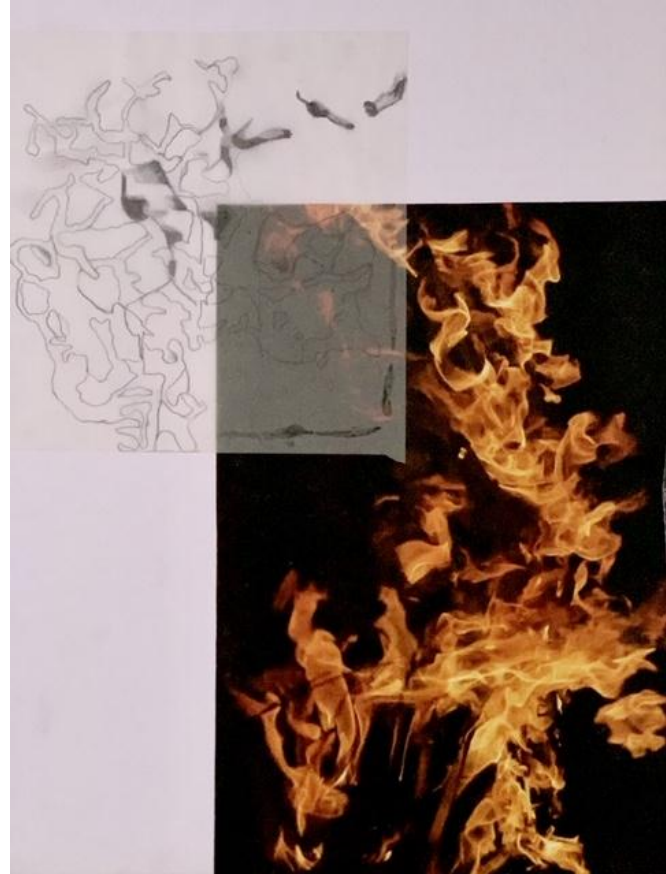

Drawings

- To understand further, I drew the outline and created texture through overlapping .

Paintings

- I painted the movement of fire and water through different techniques

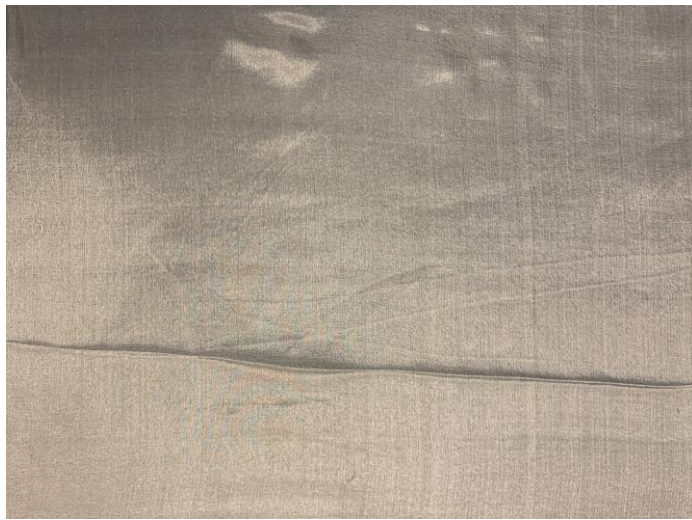

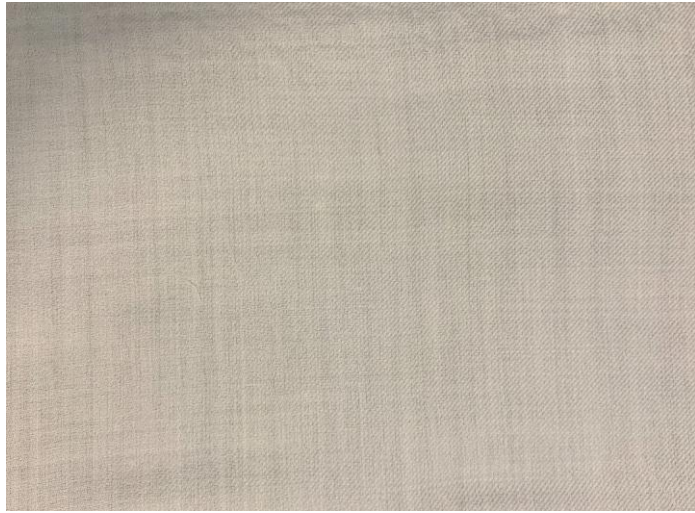

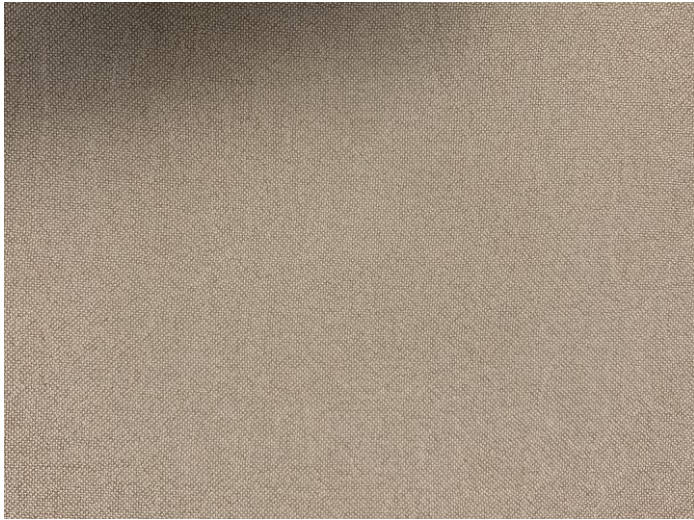

Fabric Samples

- As my topic is water and fire I was looking for transpicuous fabrics.

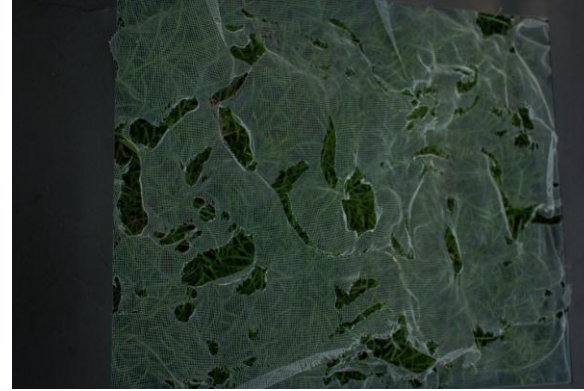

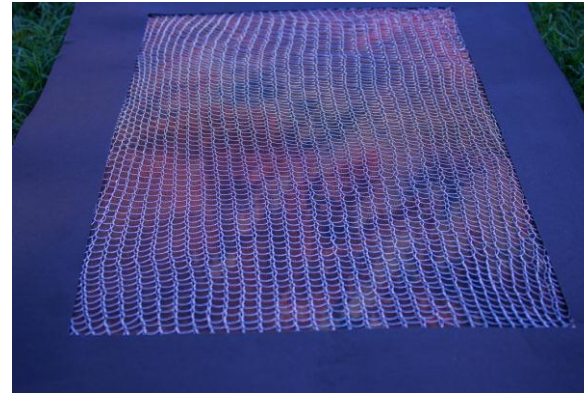

Fabrications

1. I created this fabrication through burning by, giving heat.
2. I created this fabrication through knitting and dyeing, and then I overlapped both of them.
3. I created this through filling cotton and then burning the top layer.
